The cast of the HBO series 'The Sopranos' walked the red carpet before a private Tony's Swansong dinner at Hard Rock Live on June 10. Unlike his character, Tony Soprano, actor James Gandolfini sported a beard and was followed by Lorraine Bracco, who played his psychotherapist, and actor Steven Schirripa, who played soldier Bobby 'Bacala' Baccalieri. Below, actor John Ventimiglia, who played restaurateur Artie Bucco, is surrounded by cameras, while a bandana-wearing Steve Van Zandt hardly looks like consigliere Silvio Dante.

Two days after the last 'Sopranos' episode, Bracco helped unveil a $10 million penthouse at Las Olas River House in Fort Lauderdale. The residence, which developer Tarragon Corp. said is the highest between Miami and Atlanta, includes a three-story spiral staircase with a modern chandelier at the core. Bracco also let partygoers sample her line of Bracco Wines.
